ROADS MAY TEST INTERSTATE LAW

Split May Occur on the Question of Publication of Tariffs.

LOOKS AS IF BITTER FIGHT IS PENDING

If Commission Insists on Rule Railroads May Carry Matter to Court.

If the Interstate Commerce Commission insists upon the enforcement of rules it has promulgated for the posting and filing of tariffs, it is estimated that so far as passenger tariffs alone are concerned the cost for first publication will not be less than $2,000,000 for all the railroads of the country. As the commission reserves the right to compel republication of any or all tariffs, at any time it pleases, it is not practicable to arrive at a definite conclusion of the cost for a given year until sion of the cost for a given year until experience shows just what the commission will expect, says the N. Y.

Commercial.
One of the rules provides that on the One of the rules provides that on the dissuance of what heretofore has been known as a joint tariff, the compiler, if one is appointed, must obtain and submit with the tariff the written consent of the president of each railroad represented, showing that he has been authorized to make the rates and that the roads over which they apply concur in them. It is further provided that where rates cover a larger territary that where rates cover a larger terri-tory than over the lines interested in the sheet, written concurrence from all lines represented in through routes shall be filed with the tariff. It is declared that the regulations and exactions of the commission are so burdensome it will be impossible hereafter to print various territorial, in-terterritorial and other like rate sheets in their original form. It may be deemed better to abandon them altogether. As illustrating the difficulties involved in the requirements of concurrence of roads over which rates are applicable, a compiler has called atten-tion to the fact that in the case of a rate to San Francisco, it would be necessary to have the written concurrence of almost every road west of Mississip pi river. The routing up to a given gateway is simple enough, but beyond that, complications almost infinite are met with. Even the short line mileage can be figured in any one of a half dozen ways.

This tariff dispute may yet prove the rock upon which the commission and the railroads will split, and open the interstate law to an attack in the courts that might prove fatal to it in vari-ous ways, because of other points being raised against it that have not so far been urged. It has been asserted on several occasions that the interstate law contains features believed to be unconstitutional, but there has been reunconstitutional, but there has been relictance to force them to an issue so long as the railroads could maintain amicable relations with the commission.
The order on tariffs, however, has stirred up a great deal of intense feeling. Evidently the commission is not without due appreciation of the seriousness of the strained situation, and hence the granting of a further hearing on the subject.

Frank Cameron Charged With Threatening to Kill His Divorced Wife.

MAN AND WOMEN STRUGGLE WITH GUN

Room in Apartment-House the Scene of Sensational Play With Revolver.

"It is time that we were both dead. am going to kill you and then kill nyself!" Frank Cameron, a machinist, about 50 years of age, is alleged to have declared to his divorced wife in a room-ing house at 258 South West Temple streets a few nights since. Cameron was arrested at 3:30 yesterday afternoon on a warrant charging him with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to do bodily barm. The man was arrested at the corner of Second South and Siret Wart street by Datestive. arrested at the corner of Second South and First West street by Detectives Shannon and Chase. He was taken to the station, where bail was fixed in the sum of $1,000.

According to the statement of Sadie Wilkinson, the former wife of Cameron, the couple were married several years ago and for a time lived happily to gether. Later their married life be came far from pleasant, and about a month ago Mrs. Cameron secured a divorce from her husband, at the same time having her maiden name restored. Since the divorce, it is alleged, Cameron has been drinking heavily.

According to the statement told to the officers by Comeron's divorced wife, he came to the house where she was stopping about 10 o'clock one night and forced his way into her room. He demanded to know if manded to know if she would marry him again, and when she refused is al leged to have pulled a revolver from his pocket and threatened to kill her and then take his own life. Fearing that he would carry his threat into execution as far as she was concerned, the woman tried to pacify the angry man by telling him that she wanted to talk the natter over with him.

For nearly four hours the discussion lasted, the woman afraid to make any outery for assistance lest he should kill her, nor could she get out of the room to warn others in the house of the danger which she was in. It is claimed that a number of times during the discussion. Cameron pulled the revolver. that a number of times during the dis-cussion Cameron pulled the revolver from his pocket and stated that he was going to kill her; that if she made any outcry he would shoot before any-one could get to the room, and that unless she would agree to marry him again he would kill her and then kill himself.

About 2 o'clock in the morning on the night referred to the revolver was pointed at the defenceless woman and a scuffle ensued, during which the gun was discharged, the bullet entering the ceiling of the house, but before assistance could arrive Cameron had made his escape. The matter was reported to the police at the time and the officers started to hunt for the man, but it was not until yesterday afternoon that they succeeded in arresting him. Shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday morning former Mrs. Cameron went to the office of the County Attorney, where she swore to a complaint for her former harbonic arrest and the county attorney. husband's arrest. The woman informed the officers that she was afraid of her life and that she believed that her for-mer husband would kill her if he had an opportunity.

When arrested Cameron protested ooting was entirely accidental and that he had no intention of harming his wife. He protested that he loved her too much to harm her in any way, but admitted that he wanted to marry him and live with him

In the opinion of the officers the man is partly insane through love for his former wife. This, with the fact that he has been drinking of late, is believed to have been the cause of his actions Tuesday night. In the absence of bail, Cameron remains in jail.

Two Men Held by the Police Pending Investigation.

Balley were arrested and are in the city jall without any charge opposite their names on the book. They are held pending a full investigation of the case.

According to the story told by Hatch brothers, proprietors of the saloon, they were in the rear room about 10 o'clock last night. They heard someone enter the saloon but took little notice, thinking that if it was someone that wanted something they would rap on the bar.

A few minutes later Ed. Hatch stepped from the rear room and found Bailey in the small room where the telephone is located. Bailey is said to have had his hands on an overcoat hanging on the wall. "What are you doing in here?" demanded Hatch: "get out of here, and get out quicks." Bailey started for the open part of the saloon, followed by Hatch. As Hatch came from the small room he discovered Sollis behind the saloon, 14 West Second South street get out quicks. Saley started for the open part of the saloon, followed by Hatch. As Hatch came from the small room he discovered Sollis behind the bar and at once grabbed him. Sollis started to put up a fight, but was quickly thrown to the floor by Hatch. In the meantime Balley had got out of the saloon. Frank Hatch, hearing the row, came from the back room and, thinking that the fellow on the floor was but a drunken tramp, picked him up from the floor and threw him out of the place.

As soon as the brothers had time to compare notes, they telephoned for the police. Acting Sergeant Seiger and Patrolman Kelly responded and secured a description of the two men. Within a half hour the pair were arrested in the Brunswick saloon on West Temple street. When searched at the station the pockets of Sollis produced $3.10 in cash and two rocks. Balley had no money. A short time before the pair entered the saloon, a man entered the little room where the phone is located and laid down his revolver while he went into the front. Forgetting it, he walked out of the place just as Sollis and Railey entered. Five minutes after Sollis had been thrown out of the saloon he riturned for his revolver, only to find that it was gone. ## THE NEWHOUSE PLANS FOR HIS SKYSCRAPERS

All the Details Have Been Arranged, and Construction Soon to Begin.

Every detail of the plans for the erection of two of Mr. Newhouse's sky-scrapers has now been arranged. and the work of construction is to begin as soon as the material can be brought to the ground. Henry Ives Cobb, the New York architect, arrived yesterday, and spent the day with Mr. Newhouse in the latter's private office Although the consultation dealt mainly with the details of the two large build ings, the "Newhouse" and the "Boston," on which the initial work of the great building enterprise is to be done, it also included, in a general way, the disposition which is to be made of the other properties comprised in the Newhouse transaction. As was an the other properties comprised in the Newhouse transaction. As was an nounced recently, the extension of Market street has been named "Exchange Place." The Boston block will be located at the northeast corner of Main street and Exchange Place, while the Newhouse is to be erected on the southeast corner of the same streets. Each will be eleven stories high. The Newhouse building will contain a bank and office rooms, and the Boston will contain excellent rooms for mercantile establishments and office suites. In all of their appointments and in the maof their appointments and in the ma-terials used in their construction these buildings will compare favorably with the best buildings found in Eastern

Mr. Cobb will begin his return trip to New York today, and immediately after his arrival at his headquarters will send one of his engineers to this city to supervise the preliminary work. The engineer will remain here until all of the steel construction work has been done on the two buildings, after which the supervision will devolve upon others. Mr. Cobb expressed himself as others. Mr. Cobb expressed himself as being well pleased with what he had learned as to formation of the soil on the building sites, and said that he anticipated no difficulty in constructing foundations equal to the best.

When sill of the present plans have been executed, Exchange Place will be one of the most attractive business thoroughfares in the United States. At its eastern extremity will be two ness thoroughfares in the United States. At its eastern extremity will be two buildings corresponding in dimensions to the Newhouse and the Boston blocks. On the north side of the street, near the center of the block, and at the end of Cactus street, which extends from Fourth South to Exchange Place, will be the Exchange building. The remaining space on the north side of the new street will be devoted to store buildings. A large building, 200x200 feet, will occupy the site on the east side of Cactus, while another structure, 200x150 feet, containing the power plant, will be erected on the west side of Cactus street, at the rear of the Newhouse block. Another handsome building will be erected on the Bamberger property, opposite the Beston bleck of Main and block. ### SUPT. HAWK'S VIEWS

Explains How to Make a Telegraph Company Popular With Patrons.

Company Popular With Patrons.

Some time since the Telegraph Age, a journal devoted to the interests of telegraphy, addressed letters of inquiry to prominent officials of different telegraph companies, soliciting suggestions as to "How to Make a Telegraph Company Popular." One of these tetters was addressed to Mr. W. P. S. Hawk, super-intendent of the Postal-Cable company at Salt Lake, who treats the subject in the following sensible and businesslike manner:

To make a telegraph company popular means "treatment versus service," or vice versa. This is the problem in a nutshell. Both properly dispensed will produce a first-class service. Most important of all is to have highly-courteous, painstaking and obliging employees in every branch of the business. Employees whose duty it is to meet the customer or public should be particularly attentive, courteous, and obliging. This should be done with the idea always uppermost in the employee's mind, that of impressing upon the customer or public the very same pleasing treatment they anticipate and look for, or at least should expect.

Occasionally a customer will sacrifice Occasionally a customer will sacrifice civil freatment for service, but it's the rare exception and not the rule. I place service next, because without the former the customer or public hardly the latter, and at the same time the latter, and at the same time to become generally popular both must necessarily go hand in hand and each keep pace with the other. The prosperous public of nowadays will not take the time to drum on a counter or await an employee or clerk finishing up a row of figures or some book or other work before attending to their wants, and naturally concludes they are being neglected and their patronage not appreciated. The question will permit or much to be said in detail.

POLICE FIND LOST CHILDREN Anxious Parents Appeal to Station, and Have Their Babies Restored.

Hello, is this the police station?" "Yas."
"Have you seen anything of a lost boy?
When he left home he had on—"
Burr-r-r, went the other phone.
"Excuse me," said the sergeant, "while I answer the other 'phone."
"Hello! My little boy is lost; can you tell me what to do to find him?"
Before the sergeant had time to answer, an excited man rushed into the station with the information that he had lost his four-year-old son a half hour before.

swer, an excited man rushed into the station with the information that he had lost his four-year-old son a half hour before, and wanted the assistance of the police to try and locate him. Within an hour three other excited inquiries came to the station for lost children. The first boy was reported lost shortly after 3 o clock in the afternoon and from that time until 3 o clock the phone was kept busy by anxious parents seeking their lost little ones. The lost children were Horace Ostler, 4 years old: Arthur Deering, 3 years old, William McMillan, 3 years old; Clarence Snyder, 4 years old, Eddie Coyle, 4 years old, and a 3-year-old boy whose name was not learned. Three of the youngsters' parents came to the station for their lost darlings. The others were found in different parts of the city and held until the police could notify their parents where they were. At 3 o clock last night word came to the station that the last of the six lost boys was safe in the arms of his parents. "Well," remarked Desk Sergeant Purs-"Well." remarked Desk Sergeant Pugs-ley, "six lost kids in one afternoon is certainly going some. I wonder if there will be any more tonight?"

HOW RESULT OF VOTE WAS RECEIVED

Decision Favoring Apostle W Met in Salt Lake Without Any Demonstration.

FRIENDS SURPRISED AT SMALL MAJORITY

Fight Has Only Begun, and Rierarchy Must Yet Complete. ly Surrender.

The result of the vote in the United States Senate deciding that Apostla Senator Smoot shall hold his seat in that distinguished body, was received in Salt Lake without demonstration of any kind. It came, however, as a decided surprise to his followers and allies -Mormon, Jack-Mormon and paid Gentiles-who expected a much larger majority than that recorded in favor of the ecclesiast. They had confidently counted on a majority of from 25 to 30 Senators voting for the Apostle retaining his seat, and when the bulletins showed that he had escaped exclusion by the narrow margin of 14 votes, they realized in what peril the representatives of Mormonism had stood in the upper House of Congress.

Small crowds congregated around the ewspaper offices to scan the bulleties as they were displayed. When the one announcing the final vote, and that the apostle had escaped being sent home, was displayed it was received with the same calm and quiet that is the mataining of the church authorities at the semi-annual conference. It was not looked upon as a victory, rather was it accepted as a lucky escape from dire disaster. It came as a mighty relief, and the adherents of the apostle manifested it in their looks and demeanor. A Church Optimist.

There were those who had an opinion, but they were not loudly proclaiming it There were those who appeared to be under the delusion that they had achieved the end, and that henceforth and forever ecclesiastical power in polities would be supreme in Utah. There was one who voiced his sentiments; he said it was all over now, there would be no more of it. When his attention was called to the fact that there is still a mighty agitation behind the movement he replied: "Oh, that's only a lot of women." This was his view and probably it reflects the sentiment with which a large section of his class in Utah view American womanhood in Utah view American womanhood.

He forgot utterly that half the nation, through its representatives, had recorded itself as incompromisingly opposed to Mormonism as exemplified by Apostle Smoot in the United States Senate; that it reprehended polygamy and political interference in State and municipal affairs; that it condensed the intermeddling of the administration in such affairs; and the making of compacts by those holding political power in Washington with those churchmen in Utah who claim the right of political absolutism in this and adjourning States. All this, and more the matorical forgot when he classed further opposition as emanating from "a lot of a men."

A Toast Proposed. Aptly as a reply to this man comes e following received by The Tribune last night: To The Tribune:—The vote is taken in the long-drawn-out Smoot case. "The Big Stick" prevails. And when "Our Strenuous Teddy" again visits Lush his toast can be. "Here's to Utah, God Blees Her. When a Man Dles There Are Twelve Widows."

AN AMERICAN WOMAN.

But the Beginning.

But those who have followed closely the Apostle Senator and have watched the trend of public opinion, know that the vote of Wednesday was but the be the vote of Wednesday was but the ginning of war against the Mormon hierarchy. With half the nation behind the movement, it will increase and grow until its culmination shall be reached—the complete and uncondi-tional surrender of the leaders of the Mormon faith, and then absolute aband-onment of polygamous relations and political interference.
